"LI" FLINN CALLS PENROSE LIAR IN THE SENATE PROBE

His Mother Lender in Pennsylvania Deceit Office of Millions.

United Press Telegram.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—Elihu Hooker, treasurer of the Pullman party, was the first witness before the Senate committee today at 10:10. Only a few spectators were on hand when the hearing began. Bill Flinn of Pittsburgh is the star attraction.

"Here comes Bill Flinn," exclaimed an onlooker. "Good morning, Mr. Flinn," said the policeman at the committee door. "How did you know me?" asked Flinn. "I saw your picture in the newspapers," replied the officer. Flinn was ushered into the private room of the committee and talked a few minutes with Chairman Chappin.

Treasurer Hooker produced the records of the New York county committee showing receipts and expenditures of the campaign. The detailed presentation receipts were $59,125.35 and expenditures, $62,594.55, the balance being transferred to the National committee. Flinn listened attentively to Hooker's testimony. He scratched his head reflectively when Hooker told of the Pullman officers. Hooker said that the Pullman officers collected $11,000 additional as president of the League of Progressive Clubs. Alex. Cochran, a paper manufacturer of York, Pa., contributed $15,000 to the National Progressive committee and $10,000 to the New York committee. R. P. Perkins, a friend of the Roosevelt family, gave $1,000. A. Foster Higgins and George Baxter, New Yorkers, gave $1,000 and $5,000 respectively.

"Liar" was Flinn's exclamation in the face of Senator Penrose, of Pennsylvania, by "Liar" Flinn, before the committee, today. Flinn used the term in refuting Penrose's former statement that Flinn had offered him $11,000,000 in $2,000,000 for a seat in the United States Senate. Flinn admitted he personally spent $10,784 in Pennsylvania to help nominate Roosevelt.

FIRST SOMERSET REFERENDUM TO BE ON ELECTION DISTRICTS

Court Orders Question of Black Township Division to Vote of People, Nov. 5.

Special to The Courier.

SOMERSET, Oct. 1.—The referendum is to be held upon in determining whether the court shall divide Black township into two election districts. Judge Ruppel, yesterday, ordered the holding of a special election, November 5, when voters will be given an opportunity to ballot "yes" or "no" on the proposition. Sentiment is divided in the matter. It is said, and the court, in the decree, brings progressive measures to the rescue.

Some time ago, a number of citizens petitioned Judge Ruppel to divide the township into two districts for election purposes, the dividing line to follow the Casselman river which cuts the balliwick into two separate geographical divisions on the north and south. Viewers, appointed by the court after the petition, reported in favor of the proposed division. On account of opposition from a considerable number of citizens, however, Judge Ruppel decided to refer the voters' action to the people.

THIEVES FOILED IN ENTERING HAY AND FRANCIS RESIDENCES

Daughters of Councillman Frighten Men on Rear Porch, Who Ask Food.

WARNED BY NEARBY TELEPHONE

Neighbors Tell Young Women of Coming of Suspects; Banging of Icebox Lid by Burglars Causes Alarm.

Two more attempted robberies, one at the home of Simon Hay, chairman of the Connell Street Committee, and the other at the home of Walker M. Francis, both on Johnston avenue, have been reported to the police. At the Hay home a suspected burglar knocked at the kitchen door and requested sugar. Only the two daughters of Mr. Hay were at home, and they notified the police.

The Misses Hay, sitting in their parlor heard the men on the rear porch. Later, the young women saw the men at the dining room windows. Suddenly the lid of the refrigerator on the back porch fell with a bang and the burglars, hearing commotion inside the house, evidently realized they were detected. While one of the Misses Hay telephoned the police, the other went to the door and demanded of the man what he wanted. "Some sugar, please," was the reply. Miss Hay declined to open the door and the suspects fled.

The same men were seen at the Francis home. They were seen going toward the Hay home, and members of the Francis family telephoned the Misses Hay to watch for "the burglars."

It is believed there were two or three men and that one attempted to effect an entrance to the Hay home where efforts also were made to force open a kitchen window, while another reconnoitered for an entrance to the Francis home. The latter, it is believed, returned to aid his pal in forcing an entrance to the home of the Councillman.

Both attempts were unsuccessful and the burglars excepting a few edibles from the Hay refrigerator, got nothing.

The court directed Charles J. McCormick, guardian for Mrs. Hantz, to pay her children, Gertrude, aged 26, and Jesse W., aged 29, a half-dollar, $75 a month.

Daniel Williams, jailed for selling liquor, was released because of his physical condition. He is suffering from consumption.

B. & O. PASSENGER RATE TO PITTSBURG HALF CENT MORE

Courier's Prediction as to Fare Increase Verified by Today's Tariff.

COST NOW IS $1.39 ONE WAY

Cut in Cumberland Price Result of Competition With Western Maryland; Pennsylvania Lines Make No Change as Yet; P. & E. 2 1/2 Cents

Connellsville passengers to Pittsburgh this morning on the Baltimore & Ohio railroad paid an extra half cent per mile fare. As predicted exclusively in The Courier a few days ago, the fare was increased from 2 to 2 1/2 cents a mile. This makes the fare to Pittsburgh $1.39 one way, and twice that amount the round trip tickets.

The Baltimore & Ohio fare to Cumberland now is $2.60, a reduction of 18 cents. The decrease, it is said, was made to establish the same parity between Connellville and Cumberland as that charged by the Western Maryland.

SOMERSET, Oct. 1.—Judge Ruppel, yesterday, continued until further order of the court, the temporary injunction granted 10 days ago, in the equity suit of Margaret J. Phillips and others against the Connellville & State Line subsidiary of the Western Maryland railroad, in which Sheriff Horchard had to serve at the point of a gun, the court's order restraining the railroad from closing up the plaintiffs' railroad spur to the Baltimore & Ohio at Martleton.

The following is a list of passenger rates from Connellville to various points on the Western Maryland: Cumberland, $2.60; Frostburg, $2.22; Deal, $1.92; Meyersdale, $1.64; Garrett, $1.49; Rockwood, $1.30; Markleton, $1.10; Onklyle, 51 cents.

IF THIS IS YOUR BIRTHDAY

You may be tempted to waste time and money in foolish ways, but at this time especially you should act with serious purpose, for success awaits you. If you are in employ, your honest efforts will not be overlooked.

These born today will be well liked and will have too many friends for their ultimate good. They are capable of high attainment if guided, and to some extent, controlled by those of a more practical mind.

Brenlin Window Shades

Look much better, last longer!

The richest window curtains lose their beauty during the back-spring of a dusty shade. Brenlin shades always hang straight and smooth, and contain no "bills" to catch, wrinkle, fade, or show unsightly "dye holes." They outlast the ordinary shade several times over, yet cost but a trifle more.

WHEN YOUR CHILD GETS CONSTIPATED

Cleanse Its Little Stomach, Liver and Bowels With "Syrup of Figs."

(Advertisement)
Look at the tongue, Mother! If coated, it is a sure sign that your little one's inside, the stomach, liver and bowels are clogged up with purifying waste matter and need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once.

When your child is listless, drooping, pale, doesn't sleep soundly or eat heartily or is cross, irritable, feverish, stomach sour, breath bad; has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, sore throat, or is full of cold, give a teaspoonful of Syrup of Figs, and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, undigested food and sour bile will gently move on and out of his little bowels without nausea, griping or weakness, and you surely will have a well, happy and smiling child again shortly.

With Syrup of Figs you are not drugging your children, being composed entirely of luscious figs, senna and alicates it cannot be harmful, besides they dearly love its delicious taste.

Mothers should always keep Syrup of Figs handy. It is the only stomach, liver and bowel cleanser and regulator needed. A little given today will save a sick child tomorrow.

Full directions for children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the package.

Ask your druggist for the full name, "Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna," prepared by the California Fig Syrup Co. This is the delicious, reliable, genuine old reliable. Refuse anything else offered.

Maus was taken before United States Commissioner Thomas J. Anderson at Cumberland, and pleaded "not guilty."

THERE ARE THREE WISE MEN, NOW!

ONE OF THEM is the man who knows the prospective value of a good investment in property located near a rapidly growing city; and, from a speculative point of view, THAT MAN'S GUIDING STAR LEADS HIM TO MAXVILLE FARMS, NEAR JACKSONVILLE, FLA.

THERE IS THE SECOND WISE MAN who knows the value of suburban acreage for the immediate and profitable returns to be derived from intensive farming, and for the increasing demand for those food products that are adapted to small acreage near a ready and convenient market; THIS WISE MAN IS MOVING TO MAXVILLE FARMS IN DUVAL CO., NEAR JACKSONVILLE, FLA.

THE THIRD WISE MAN belongs to that class of industrious citizens who live on moderate incomes. He cannot purchase expensive property in the heart of a city, but he knows that by owning a home in a gateway suburb where he has the advantage of rapid transportation facilities, he can live close to his city business and yet promote economy by having home grown commodities. While the star of opportunity is bright THIS MAN PURCHASES A PIECE OF LAND AND MOVES TO MAXVILLE, DUVAL CO., FLORIDA.

Twenty thousand acres of the finest farming land in the unequalled and fertile Duval county, near Jacksonville, Florida.

This famous ranch has been held intact since pioneer days, and at last is being thrown open to the public in tracts of from 20 acres and upwards. It is city land at farm prices. A small payment will secure a home of 20 acres, balance payable in easy annual payments (which you can make from the land). Fine macadamized roads are now being built connecting Maxwell with Jacksonville, Fla.

BEST INVESTMENT IN THE WORLD.

There is no investment that equals the purchase of good land. Every individual is acquainted with somebody who has grown rich by the increase of his land holdings. Within the last dozen years farm lands have doubled and tripled in value and in every community there are hundreds of instances where persons who invested a few hundred dollars in farm land a dozen years ago are today rated as wealthy individuals.

There were lands in DUVAL COUNTY, FLORIDA, that were practically valueless a few years ago that have increased in value from less than $100 per acre to prices ranging from $200 to more than $1,000 per acre. Were you one of those benefited?

The next census will show the population of the United States more than 120,000,000 and when that time comes, land values in this country will become what they are in England and Germany and then it will be too late forever for a young man to purchase for himself a home. The mothers and fathers who expect their sons and daughters to have homes of their own must buy land now, and there is no better spot on earth for a safe investment than a DUVAL COUNTY FARM, near the large city of Jacksonville, Fla.

YOU CANNOT AFFORD TO NEGLECT BUYING LAND NOW.

There is absolutely no chance to lose money in buying good land in the United States, especially a MAXVILLE FARM IN DUVAL COUNTY, FLORIDA. These lands are bound to increase in value at tremendous rates and in a very short space of time.

Remember that you will not always be young. No matter how much you earn now, there will come a day when your earnings will be less. Therefore it is very important that you prepare a reserve or a surplus for your declining days. The best reserve you can make is to buy a farm and the best farm that you can buy is in MAXVILLE.

TUESDAY EVENING, OCT. 1, 1912.

OUR PREMIER PRACTICAL POLITICIAN.

It is becoming more than ever apparent that Western Pennsylvania's picturesque politician, the reformed and regenerated, reeducated and sanctified leader of the Hill Moose movement, the Honorable Bill Flinn, started something he would like to stop-but can't when he baited Senator Boies Penrose with fac simile publications of a letter from John D. Archbold of the Standard Oil Company enclosing $25,000 in accordance with a certain "understanding" between them.

This understanding was interpreted by Boies Flinn in strict accordance with his own political methods. He assumed and implied that it was the Senator's price, whom it subsequently developed that it was a campaign contribution to the then Chairman of the Pennsylvania Republican State Committee, supplementing one of $175,000 to the Republican National Committee to promote the election of the Republican national ticket headed by Theodore Roosevelt. A further chapter was added to the Book of Revelations showing how Boies Flinn offered as much as a million dollars for a seat in the United States Senate.

Lieutenant Flinn knew when to practice the golden rule of silence, and he is still saving word, but Colonel Roosevelt made indignant and emphatic denials. When it was shown that the money had been contributed, he declared that it was without his knowledge or consent and that he had directed its return, but it transpired that this virtuous direction was made after the money had been spent and after the Standard Oil people had refused to contribute $150,000 additional.

During this verbal and epistolary disturbance, the famous Harriman contribution of $250,000 and the remark attributed to Roosevelt to the effect that he and Harriman were "practical" men, were brought forth, and the Colonel rebuked his denials and cleared the air in his characteristically crushing fashion by electing all the "indignities" to his private Annals Club.

That ought to have settled it, and it did settle it with the Moose elves, but not with the pestiferous Penrose. He secured the passage of a resolution in the Senate directing an investigation of the whole matter, and before the committee charged with this work appeared yesterday the private secretary of the late Edward L. Harriman with some three-score letters and their answers constituting private correspondence between Roosevelt and Harriman prior to and immediately after the campaign of 1904, among them the letter saying, "My dear Mr. Harriman, you know we are both practical men." THESE LETTERS BETRAY AN INTIMATE RELATIONSHIP BETWEEN THE WRITERS. THEY PROVE THAT ROOSEVELT FREQUENTLY RECEIVED HARRIMAN TO COME TO THE WHITE HOUSE AND DINN AND TALK OVER MATTERS OF PRESIDENTIAL POLICY. THEY SHOW THAT HARRIMAN'S ADVICE WAS SOUGHT CONCERNING ROOSEVELT'S LETTER OF ACCEPTANCE OF THE PERSONNEL OF HIS CABINET AND THE ATTITUDE OF HIS ADMINISTRATION TOWARD RATES AND OTHER VITAL RAILROAD QUESTIONS. It does but appear that Harriman accepted Roosevelt's invitations with alacrity, but it does appear that the warmth of Roosevelt's friendship became perceptibly chilly after the campaign was over and he was booked for four more years at the White House. If there was any further correspondence the letters of President Roosevelt were not supererogatory with the warning words, "strictly private."

In short, the documentary evidence submitted by Harriman's former confidential clerk conclusively proves that when seeking reelection Colonel Roosevelt had no hesitation in enlisting the support of "practical men" and employing "practical methods" of campaigning. THESE ARE THE SAME MEN AND THE SAME METHODS WHICH HE AND BILL FLINN NOW DENOUNCE AS CORRUPT AND CRIMINAL. They were "practical" when they were ALIVE, but they are a PECULIAR when they are ALIVE.

It is difficult to understand how any portion of the American people or the Republican party can be blind to the insidious ambition of Theodore Roosevelt and his entire willingness and ever ready eagerness to promote its advancement by sacrificing friends and foes, repudiating party and principles and even turning his back upon truth and honor. In 1904, he turned down Harriman when the fight was won and he had no further need of his money; he published Archbold for his refusal to contribute further to the Roosevelt cause; he publicly pledged himself against a Third Term, and to make his meaning plain promised that he would not seek "another" election. In 1912, we find him IGNORING HIS THIRD TERM PLEDGES, DENYING HIS RELATION WITH HARRIMAN AND MAKING PUBLIC VIRTUE OUT OF PRIVATE VENGEANCE. Yet there are some people who profess to believe him a patriot, and others who do believe him a patriot, when as a matter of fact he is a SELF-CONFESSED "PRACTICAL" POLITICIAN shown to be serving himself first and his country quite incidentally. Before the good of the people and the welfare of the nation have always been conspicuously placed, "ME AND MY POLICIES."

The Jungle Hunter hasn't all the American people "bullheaded," but he has some portion of them "bull-muzzed."

The Courier is on record as saying the Lawrenceville strike leaders charged with murder should have a speedy and impartial trial. Their trial was long delayed, but it is now on. We assume that the accused will be dealt with justly, and we fail to see the necessity for sympathy strikes or suspensions, or lawless conduct of any kind in connection therewith.

The movement for a sane and jolly Halloween is moving right along and growing in enthusiasm as it goes. Conneltsville should keep Open House that evening, but though House never, and this should be well understood before-hand. Let's have fun and plenty of it, and let it be known that sportsmen will become the sorriest spectacles in the big show.

If we remember correctly it was T. Roosevelt who founded the Annals Club.

While serving his second term as President Roosevelt does not seem to have redeemed his private pledges any better than he did his public promises.

The habit of making Mountain Dew is still strong in some parts of Donagay township.

The germans, not content with demanding the abolition of kishinev, are trying to drive the ascendant oyster from the table by casting upon it the dark suspicion of harboring typhoid germs, particularly when it is served in sewage-laden waters. It seems as if all that the oyster is not the criminal, better get busy and prevent the pollution of the water.

Some of the Western Maryland contractors failed their railroad work just in time to get some good trolley contracts in the Conneltsville region.

The chestnut crop is nearly ready for harvest, but some of the political chestnuts being grown in this campaign should have been picked long ago.

The High School boys of Conneltsville propose to acquire for the school a new football team. If it breaks every leg in the team, the girls seek fame, too, but not that way. They may crack their voices, but—break away there!

The mental strife of our public schools in Conneltsville and elsewhere throughout the country is seriously interfered with by the badly ill of the pupils. It is time medical inspection got busy.

Let us hope that Indian Summer will not pass us wholly by.

The weather man still has a chance to make good, but his inclination is in doubt.

In the matter of building enterprises, Somerset county in several laps ahead of its neighbors.

General Jacob S. Coxey calls Colonel Theodore Roosevelt a sham and Professor Wilson a schoolmaster. He says the former would do anything to get back, and he thinks the latter is fit to run a big business like that of the United States government. Coxey's Army was no sham; it was a substantial protest against Wilson government.

The B. & O. continues to butt into the Western Maryland.

Treasurer Flinn's books have been destroyed, but there remains a few Harriman letters, and possibly some unpublished Archbold correspondence. The hole that Bill Flinn dug for Boies Penrose is getting big enough to make a political grave for some of the Moose herd.

Conneltsville fans are busy trying to organize a baseball circuit for 1913. Seasons may come and seasons may go, but then last every summer for this own O. baseball!

Rockwood is adopting a city code now that she has two railroad systems.

Pennsylvania reports greater tax-able incomes last year than ever before, and the question arises whether the people are more prosperous or whether the taxpayers are more industrious.

J. Frost is hitting the high places.

The burning out of a trolley controller is not necessarily dangerous, but it is rather terrifying to timid and uninitiated persons. When the trolley goes down its controller, the passengers should hold fast to their seats, jumping off a car is often just as dangerous as jumping on.

T. R. is some trimmer, but occasionally he gets tripped himself.

CHAPTER X.

Instead of leaving the vicinity of the cabin after being liberated, he might closed the door and replaced the bar. Drifting back into the bushes, he waited. An hour passed and then came voices and rustling in the wood. Soon the game warden and two deputies hove into view. The warden's face was flushed with excitement as he strode along in advance of his men.

Approaching the door, he called out:

"Will ye surrender peaceable and come out of there, or shall I come in an' git ye?"

From within there emanated no answering voice. Out in the bushes, twenty feet away, Bedright waited, evenly.

"Come on out; the door's unlocked," shouted the warden.

Still no answer.

"Go! darn ye; I'll show ye. Come on in, fellers," bawled the officer, throwing open the door and dashing into the cabin, followed by his deputies.

With an agile spring, Bedright left the clump of bushes and dashed for the door. The warden saw him coming and sprang to meet him—but too late! Slamming the door shut, the mayor shot the bar home.

He could hear the strenuous objections of the prisoners as he hurried away, making a detour to a farmer's house, where he hoped to secure something to eat. A ruddy-cheeked farmer who fed him bountifully and protested at the unnecessary size of the cabin he gave him for his dinner and a basket of provisions, with which he set out for the cabin.

Reaching the wood-chopper's hut, in which two hours previously he had been a prisoner, he gaped on the door.

"Whoever's there," cried an excited voice within, "let us out!"

"Break the glass in the window," directed the mayor, his face illumined with smiles, "and eat out of my hand!"

A growl of mingled disappointment and relief preceded the shattering of the glass. Bedright held his basket on his left arm and began passing provisions through the aperture.

"Good grub, this, boys," he chuckled. "I served excellent meals at both my boarding houses. I'll bring you to bed tomorrow night. Just you make yourselves comfortable. How would you like a deck of cards?"

It was dark when Bedright reached Squirrel Inn and slipped unobserved to his room.

When Jackie Vining came down at six next morning to take a constitutional before breakfast, the mayor sat in an easy chair on the veranda, smoking his favorite pipe.

"Will you kindly tell Miss Mason that I am waiting her commands?" he asked easily, with no trace of resentment in his voice.

"I was going to liberate you this morning," she said, simply, trying to hide her surprise.

"Oh, I got out last night, thank you. I'm particular about my own bed. Never could sleep well in a strange bunk," laughing.

After breakfast Alice Mason, the girl appointed by the court to defend Bedright on the occasion of his trial, called him aside.

"As your attorney, I am led to offer you your freedom today. I want to go to Lakeville for some cold cream, and if you will ride to the Post Office with me I will let you examine your own device. It is not always that an attorney can vouch for his client, but I am willing to take a chance on you," confidently. "And besides, these girls have been hawking the life out of you. It's time somebody took pity," laughing.

The mayor put his lips close to the girl's rosy ear.

"Honest," he said, "hope to die, I've never had so much fun in all my life—but that bill business is dangerous, and I'd like to get through with the trial honorably. I can use today, and as a small expression of my gratitude, I'll send you the jolliest big box of candy in Chicago as I pass through."

"Thank you," she said, her eyes dancing. "I'll leave the selection to you."

An hour later Bedright, astride a good horse, was galloping toward Jordan, a railroad crossing ten miles to the north. Arriving at the station, he sent a telegram, ate a typical meal at a typical country hotel, and started back. He reached the cross roads at duck and let his tired mount plod leisurely homeward.

Saturday morning broke clear and warm after a sweltering night. The sun was copper colored and the leaves upon the trees, where they were wont to bow and curtsy to the zephyr's breath, hung listless in the shimmering heat. At breakfast, none looked refreshed and Miss Host complained of drought. Pauline, the cook, whose eggs were always soft-boiled to a creamy elasticity and whose toast was ever golden brown and delicious, fretted the former into blue-black globules surrounded by leathery gelatin, while the latter was burned and desiccated to a hard-back condition, decidedly disappointing to her usually delighted followers. The thermometer, to all intents and purposes, was so besely ambitious as to seemingly have no other desire than to climb higher and higher in its relentless rise.

"Come on, Mr. Bedright," exclaimed Molly McConnell, "row me over to Squirrel Point. I want to sketch La Vock's cabin, the remaining relic of what was once the oldest trading post in the state. It is tumbledown and ramshackle and will make a fine study. I was by there a week ago on a calm day and the reflection in the placid water was almost as realistic as the old log-pile itself. A photograph taken when I saw the cabin would puzzle the beholder to tell which was the cabin and which the reflection. Today promises to be still and blue fair to afford me an opportunity to get just the right angles, please. I'll be ready in ten minutes."

She came down to the dock, her black eyes dancing in anticipation. Bedright picked her outfit in the prow of the boat along with the lunch basket, held the boat firmly against the dock as she put her dainty foot upon the stern seat, and dipped gracefully into position, a magazine under her arm and a camera slung across her shoulder.

As the mayor took the oars he looked at her—bareheaded, her lustrous black locks defying the sun, her full tempting lips shaping a perfect cupid's bow, a saucy little dimple on each side of a well-rounded cheek, and teeth as white as milk-coral through which the laughter bubbled and rippled like a singing spring across its misty way.

Surely a man might well be sentenced for life to such a woman's whim, while but a day's service were as an hour in Naples after a hard passage!

Molly McConnell had one of those daring, unconventional temperaments that bespoke a woman of full blood and spirit, a being of beauty and grace and voluptuous constancy. To this man she would be all in all, reigning queen of his heart, laughing at afflictions, scorning jealousies, holding him secure with her mental and physical charms.

The lake was calm and through its mirrored depths long strands of weed and marsh grass could be seen streaming upward in the shallow places. Not even a ripple stirred the surface and the sun reflected from the shimmering waters, glowed heatedly upon the faces of the two in the boat—the girl with hair like the night and eyes of liquid violet, the man with a sentence to serve in the Garden of Eden with a pippin as the forbidden fruit.

The mayor rested on his oars and mopped his sweating brow. The girl's eyes danced.

"And now," she bubbled, "you are in a position to appreciate the arduous life of the galley slave. Row on, my man!"

"That this were the river of Life!" countered Bedright, matching the woman's friggery.

"One of the obligations imposed upon you by the 'Judge,'" solemnly, "was not to propose marriage or play the role of Lothario. I trust your intentions toward me are like the Christ-mas snow—simply another layer of white purity!"

"Pray do not tempt me, Eve," he said; "a boat is fully as perilous for loving as a fat for matrimony."

Her merry laughter rippled out across the water from a throat as shapely as an artist's model. Her neck, browned from the life at Squirrel Inn, was full and moulded free of hollow dips.

"O, you old Adam!" she giggled. "don't you know that the price of apples has gone up—away up—since our mothers quit sewing carpet-rags and spinning flax. It takes a man with a head those days to keep my lady gratified."

"Apples, say the physicians, are necessary to the human system. And I may point also to a higher authority who has said it is not good for man to dwell alone! As for the price, was there ever an Adam who thought of this?"

"Not until the baby needed shoes!" agreed the woman, letting her head ripple the water over the rail. "Many an Adam has asked his Eve to fly with him and after the flight couldn't buy a curry of chicken wings in a Boston restaurant!"

The mayor smiled.

"Marriage as it is practiced," he commented, "is a bigger gamble than the board of trade—and twice as interesting."

The boat glided onward across the sleeping waters, leaving a V-shaped ripple in its wake. Traversing the lake, Bedright pulled through a narrow neck that connected Goose Lake with the main body of Sylvan. The view was enchanting—pine, cedar and hemlock, birch and maple varied the shores and green bushes trailed their drooping tendrils in the cool waters. La Vock's cabin came into view, situated upon a knoll beside the lake, a picturesque pile of the lumber-jack days. About its tumbled sides the wild ampelopsis scrambled, and rag-weed flourished in the clearing. The mayor drew the skiff upon the shore, carried the girl's canoe, box and camp chair to a spot designated and stood by for orders.

"Can you make coffee?" asked Miss McConnell, as she got out the cany and prepared to begin the sketch.

"In these days of the new woman," he said, banteringly, "man has come to recognize in a kindlier light the ladylike art of cooking. Fair enchantress, I can make coffee fit for the gods, but woman's dainty hand must pour, else it loses its flavor."

"Very well," she said, "now run away and forget me until the coffee is boiling in the pot."

Bedright turned to the forest's fringe and began gathering firewood. When he called, she came promptly.

"Man," she said, "has caused many a divorce by not coming to dinner when he is called. Nothing so netles a woman as to wait meals. Knowing this, I make haste."

"Your diplomacy is admirable," he congratulated, passing her the coffee pot.

RAINY DAY SAILOR.

Would You Pay $110 For This Creation?

DARK BLUE SATIN HAT.

The indulgent husband has some reason for being discouraged at the steadily increasing prices of feminine head-gear. Most men who have means will gladly pay fifty or a hundred dollars for a stunning hat for their wives, a creation loaded perhaps with ostentatious feathers, real lace bows and the like, but when it comes to a three figure price for a simple little rainy day sailor, made of a handful of silk, a yard of ribbon and fancy feather, things are different.

The hat pictured is a Paris creation and is made of dark blue satin over a sailor frame. Blue and white ribbons and a wired white fox brush trim the hat in a smart and simple style.
